Residents plant new trees at Trevor Creek Park

By MEGAN LOISELLE
antioch@weeklyjournals.com

Citizens of Antioch plant a red oak at Arbor Day at Trevor Creek Park on Saturday, April 26.

ANTIOCH - Five new autumn blaze maples and a red oak tree soon will provide shade and a source of pride for the residents of the Trevor Creek subdivision in Antioch. Last Saturday, about 100 Antioch residents volunteered their time to dig holes and plant the trees in celebration of Arbor Day.

What was a barren, grassy area is now the newly dedicated Trevor Creek Park.

After Village President Dorothy Larson read a short proclamation, the volunteers split into groups to dig holes for each tree.

Larson said that Arbor Day did not use to be as prominent a celebration as it was now, but with increased awareness of Earth Day and being environmentally conscious, "it's a great occasion to celebrate."

Despite chilly winds, the volunteers at Trevor Creek Park had all the trees planted and watered within an hour.

Antioch Parks and Recreation Director Laurie Stahl said the weather was some of the worst the village had ever had for Arbor Day.

"One of our guys said, 'You'd think Mother Nature would cooperate since we're doing this for her,'" Stahl said.

Volunteer John Ploss has spent years lending his expertise as a landscape architect to the annual Arbor Day celebrations.

"It allows me to give back a little bit," Ploss said.

Ploss chooses the trees and the best place to plant them.

He said the maples were fast growing and hardy.

"We had a good turnout today for as questionable as the weather was," Ploss said, adding that the cold weather was actually good for keeping trees moist.

Ploss said the planting was made efficient with the use of the village's machinery and the help of its employees.

The volunteers also refurbished the area around the park entrance with small plants and mulch.

Related happenings

Because of a donation from the Antioch Garden Club, a Red Oak also was planted in Trevor Creek Park April 26.

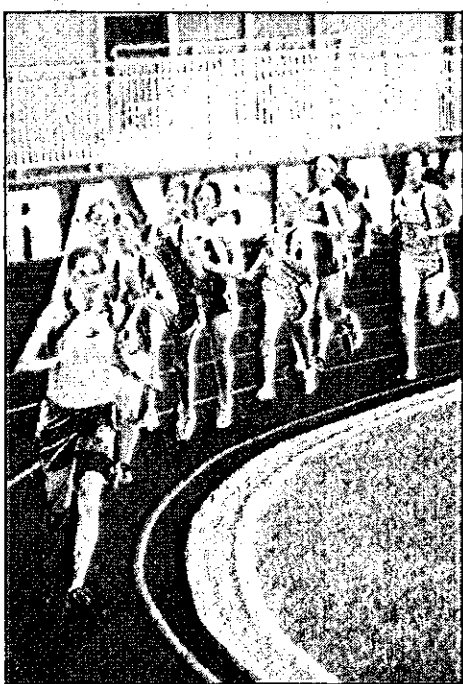

Joanne Dugenske, a member of the club, said the tree was just one of many the club has donated for areas in Antioch.

From 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday, May 10, the day before Mother's Day, the garden club will have a plant sale at the Williams Park Pavilion, which is behind the Antioch Public Library.

Trees, bushes, annuals and houseplants will be sold during the sale.

It's on the Web at LakeCountyJournals.com

OK. I realize I've promoted our Web site heavily in this space the last few months.

But I can't help myself. We're doing some awesome things on the site.

We have blogs, photo slideshows, financial columns, tips, things to do in your town, police blotters, humor columns and much more.

And while we might be a weekly newspaper, we are a daily Web site, with new content posted on the site each and every day.

Looking to knock out some free time at work? Visit our Web site to see what's going on around your hometown, to laugh out loud reading one of our columnists or to see whether any major breaking news happened that day.

One of the things I've enjoyed most since joining the Journal is reading John Matijevich's columns.

His column for this week about the overcrowded prison system is quite good.

You can read it on page 11A.

We debut our Day Tripping column this week on the front page of the LakeLife section.

Writer Kathy Strelow visited Alden Resale in McHenry County. She will continue to write about fun places she visits outside of the county on the first of every month.

Mother's Day is coming up, and we would love to highlight special mothers in our towns.

(Well, to be honest, all moms are special, but we're looking for ones who have children who like to write about them.)

If you would like to write something about your mom and have it appear in next week's issue, e-mail me at jgrace@nwnewsgroup.com, and we'll put it in next week's edition of the Journal.

Last but not least, have a great rest of your week and weekend. And here's hoping for some more sun.

Community comes together to beautify Antioch

• ARBOR DAY

Many parents brought their children who helped by digging up large rocks, which would be caught by the lawn mower.

Neighbor Velma Barbarise said she brought her children to help "spruce up" the park.

"This is our park," Barbarise said.

"The kids enjoyed it. It's a great event for the whole community, especially in this cold weather."

Students from the local high school participated as well.

Travis Gantz, who lives in the neighborhood, said he wanted to help others.

"My dad taught me how to mulch, so I'm good at that," Gantz said.

Stahl said she was glad to see all of the kids helping out, so they could have some ownership of the Antioch park.

Little Miss Antioch Graci Leineberg volunteered her time.

"I think we could help the community by planting the trees," she said.

The National Arbor Day Foundation has designated Antioch a Tree City USA for the 16th year in a row.

Stahl said Arbor Day and the Tree City USA designation were important because they allowed the community to come together to "beautify Antioch."

Curtis Johnson said he recruited many of the volunteers because he has a personal interest in the park - his house faces it.

"It's been three years," Johnson said. "Now the park is coming to fruition."

Antioch official loving her new job

Growing community attracts village administrator to area

By JESSICA JACOBSEN
jjacobsen@nwnewsgruop.com

ANTIOCH – Some people aren't sure what they want to do or where they want to work. That isn't the case for Jill Velan.

Velan is now two months into her new job – Antioch village administrator.

"I'm having a lot of fun," Velan said.

Velan comes to Antioch after serving 10 years as the assistant village administrator in Lincolnwood.

When Velan began her search for a village administrator position, she was on the look for a community that is growing, but also has interesting things going on.

"What intrigued me when I came here is that the staff is wonderful to work with," Velan said. "I interviewed with them and they had so much passion about working here and all the things that Antioch's been working on and is going to continue to work on."

Before entering local government, Velan worked as a social worker at a mental health agency.

She worked with behavioral disorder adolescence, and she developed plans to help keep kids at home so they did not have to go into state hospitals or other facilities, Velan said.

But Velan didn't stop there. She decided to go to Northern Illinois University to get her master's degree in public administration.

"My big plan was to someday be an executive director for a mental health agency because I want to help people," Velan said. "And that's my goal in life."

Velan said she started in the urban management track because she had already experienced the human services side. However, Velan still wanted to try something new.

"I got involved in local govern-

Velan said she would like to work for Antioch for a long time so that she can see projects develop as well as the community.

"I would really like to be in a place so that I can help shape and help the village move forward in their next step," Velan said. "I was fortunate to stay in my old position for 10 years and got to complete a lot of projects, so I hope to be able to do the same here."

Some of the things Velan and the board are working on or will begin working on are economic development, updating the village's codes, and capital improvement.

"This is a growing community with a lot of potential," Velan said. "It's a great community already with a great history, and it can be even better, and that's what attracted me."

Smooth operations in Antioch

I got a chance to catch up with Antioch Village President Dorothy Larson to ask her about the old Antioch water tower being torn down.

Larson said that during the winter the tower had sprung a leak and because it wasn't being used, the village decided to tear it down.

"It was just unsightly," Larson said. The whole process took about six hours, Larson said.

"I've never seen anything go so smoothly," Larson said.

Jim Keim, director of physical services, had done bids, and was told the process could be two to three days.

While the tower was being torn down, members of the village had a grill onsite.

"We made a picnic out of it," Larson said. "It was really neat."

No plans have been made about what to do with the space where the tower was, but if I hear anything, I'll make sure to let everyone know.

The Antioch Democratic Organizations welcomed some new officers. Gene Kryczka was elected chairman and Peter Grant and Diana Camp are the new vice chairpersons.

Tim Chichester was elected treasurer and Sandy Frances was named secretary. Congratulations to all of you, and good luck in all your positions!

Antioch crawling with talent

Village hosts 2nd annual Art Crawl, showcases area artists

By JESSICA JACOBSEN
jjacobsen@nwnewsgroup.com

ANTIOCH — Residents will get a chance to enjoy the arts this weekend with the second annual Antioch Art Crawl. From 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, May 3, downtown Antioch will be flooded with an array of artistic talents.

"It's all the facets of art," said Barbara Porch, executive director of the Antioch Chamber of Commerce.

The event will be hosted by Antioch School District 34, and it is being sponsored by the chamber, village and Antioch Fine Arts Foundation.

Porch said patrons can look forward to street performers, drama workshops, chorus performances, and District 34 students' paintings.

The paintings were collected by Robin Singer, art elementary educator for District 34. She has been collecting paintings from students in grades first through fifth since September.

Singer said having the students' paintings displayed in windows downtown was a chance to show the community what the students were doing.

"It gives us an opportunity to brag about our art program," Singer said.

Singer isn't the only one excited about the Art Crawl. The students also can't wait, she said.

"They love it," Singer said. "They keep wanting to know if [the paintings are] going to be sold."

Porch said the organizations decided to continue the Art Crawl because of how successful last year's event was.

"The first year it was just tremendous the amount of foot traffic it generated," Porch said.

This year's Art Crawl will include demonstrations by area artists. And at the Meeting House, 977 Main St., Antioch, teachers will make a coffee house with hands-on art activities. Porch added that she would like this year to be even better, but with last year's success she doesn't know how it could improve.

High school reaches out

Growing event teaches area students about environment

By JOSEPH MULLER
antioch@weeklyjournals.com

ANTIOCH — For Earth Day at Antioch High School, cars came in electric.

The full-sized electric cars were one of many groups at Antioch High School's Earth Day Fair, teaching students from different schools to better care for the Earth.

Antioch High School teacher Mary Johnson and her environmental club made their sixth annual Earth Day Fair the biggest yet, with 16 exhibitors.

Most of the exhibitors come from outside the school.

"It gets bigger every year," Johnson said.

Surrounding grade schools and preschools took their students on field trips to the fair.

"The little ones loved the event," Johnson said. "They especially loved the animals."

Of the animals at the event, the students petted Dillon and Maya — two greyhounds saved by USA Dog, a non-profit dog rescue organization that saves greyhounds from the dog racing industry.

USA Dog adoption representative Lisa Stringer said her organization saves several hundred racing dogs a year from a dog racing industry that, according to the Humane Society, killed 19,000 dogs in the year 2000.

"We enjoy outreach events like this," Stringer said, adding that people have adopted greyhounds as a result of events like this.

The students also petted the more exotic animals of Serpent Safari, including an 8-foot-long albino Burmese python named Buttercup. Serpent Safari employee Kevin Curtis said the students had a lot of questions about the animals. Students also rubbed their hands along the scaly body of a 4-year-old American alligator named Spike.

"The kids either loved or hated them," Curtis said.

Clothing company American Outfitters came to the event, showing students what businesses can do to be green.

The company's representatives brought some of their company's products made from organic cotton, bamboo, and recycled paper to the fair.

"The older kids were getting really into our booth," American Outfitters representative Stephen Pursche said.

During the event, students also were able to learn about the future of the driving industry.

Ked Simmerman and Ted Sandders of the Fox Valley Electric Automobile Association drove their electric cars to the show.

Simmerman said his Ford Ranger's AC battery technology, which can ride the vehicle about 80 miles on only $1.80 worth of electricity, is the cutting edge of electric car technology.

"The kids have shown a decent amount of interest in our vehicles," Simmerman said.

Deane Jones of Round Lake organizes makeup and props backstage at P.M. & L. Theatre in Antioch.

Volunteers keep P.M. & L. going

By DANI SCHWEIGERT
dschweigert@nwnewsgroup.com

ANTIOCH – When Deane Jones' husband, Lou, started acting at P.M. & L. Theatre in 1972, she became involved with the theater, as well. But she never could have imagined that 36 years later she would still be a part of the theater.

Deane, of Round Lake, is vice president of operations at P.M. & L. and also has worked lights and sound, served refreshments, made costumes, directed and acted.

"I've done everything there is to do," she said with a laugh. "I love it."

The theater, which Deane said seats 163 people, is a quaint building on Main Street in Antioch.

It was built about 1917 as a movie theater and became P.M. & L. in 1961.

The theater was remodeled in March 2003 after patron Dolly Spiering left the theater $1.5 million when she died, Deane said. P.M. & L. now has added seating, a catwalk, a light and sound booth and is decorated in a blue-and-maroon color scheme.

"Brigadoon"

When: May 23, 24, 25, 30, 31 and June 1, 6, 7 and 8 (call for show-times)

Where: P.M. & L. Theatre, 877 Main St. (Route 83) in Antioch

Cost: Tickets are $15 for adults and $12 for students and seniors.

For more information: Call 847-395-3055 or go to www.pmltheatre.com.

Six shows are performed each year at the theater, Deane said, and everyone is invited to help and audition.

"We're very proud that we have open auditions," she said.

Deane recently was talked into auditioning for the lead role of Raynelle in "Dearly Departed," which was her first lead role.

"What surprised me is I didn't get one bit nervous," she said.

But, Deane said, she does get nervous when she's directing a show, and she sits in the audience every night to watch each performance. Deane added that of all the jobs she's fulfilled at the theater, directing is her favorite.

"I suppose [I enjoy it] because it's a challenge to take those dead words on that script and bring that to life," she said.

Everyone who helps P.M. & L. are volunteers, Deane said, and they are like a family.

"It's support for each other," she said. "It's very nice to have the P.M. & L. family there, and I can't tell you how many people have met and married here."

Because the theater is volunteer based, Deane said, it is sustained through membership fees, money made from shows, donations, fundraising events and advertising. She said she's thrilled to see younger residents get involved with the theater.

"I think it gives all the young people something to do to keep them off the streets," she said. "It's a positive thing."

Deane said the theater offers a mix of genres each year, and rehearsals recently began for its next play, "Brigadoon." "Brigadoon" is a musical and love story about a village that appears once every one hundred years.

Residents find their treasures

Bottle club lets members share expertise

By JESSICA JACOBSEN
jjacobsen@nwnewsgroup.com

ANTIOCH – The saying goes that somebody's trash is somebody else's treasure, and that saying is true for Lindenhurst resident Ron Neumann.

Neumann is a collector, and his collections include bottles, Illinois license plates, railroad lanterns and tobacco tins.

His main collection is bottles, particularly Chicago beer bottles.

"I have more than 3,000 bottles," Neumann said.

Neumann said he began collecting bottles when he was walking along train tracks and found some bottles on his walk. That has now equated into 38 years of collecting.

"I was always into history," Neumann said about why he started collecting.

His love for collecting help lead to the founding of the Antique Bottle Club of Northern Illinois.

The bottle club meets once a month at the Antioch Senior Center, 817 Holbek Drive in Antioch, where members get together to discuss their collections.

"There ain't a whole lot of us out there," Neumann said.

Neumann even passed his love for collecting to his son, who collects bottles and beer cans.

"I just like this," Neumann said. "It's like archeology."

Another long time collector is newsletter editor Dorothy Furman of Antioch. Furman has been a member the club for 29 years, but she has been collecting for 45 to 50 years she said.

Furman collects Lake County bottles, but that is not her expertise, she said. She loves antique dolls. In fact, at the last meeting, Furman won a raffle that got her to take home a Japanese doll from the 1920s. She also has a Mt. Rushmore collection and a cymbal collection.

Furman said her collections grew when she moved into her Antioch home.

"There were things here that I held onto," she said.

Being a long time collector has allowed Furman to compete in the antique competition at the Lake County Fairgrounds, and even win a few times. Furman even donates to the Lake County Historical Society.

"I'm just very passionate about Lake County," she said.

The bottle club might have bottle in the name, but Furman said the club welcomes any type of collector.

The next club meeting is at 7:30 p.m. May 7, which will be a mini-collection night. There also will be the Antique Bottle Club and Collectible Show and Sale May 4 at the Brat Stop in Kenosha, Wis. The show and sale is to raise money for the club.

It's only logical

In a world where women come from Venus and men come from logic, it's tough to be a woman. It isn't that we're not logical; we just have our own assumptions of what "logical" means. Here's an example how my logic fared when I faced down the male version of it.

I did not receive roses from my spouse on our anniversary because he claimed finances to be a wee-bit sparse this year. Somewhat miffed, but never one not to turn things to my advantage, I suggested he buy me an artificial tree instead. I explained it this way: "The tree will probably cost less than the dozen roses you didn't buy me, and, in some small manner, even a bogus tree is related to the floral family. But, best of all, it will fill the empty corner of the bathroom."

"But I didn't buy you roses," he said, "so it doesn't make sense to replace a gift I didn't buy you with something else." Did he stop there? No. "Besides, he said, 'you cannot compare an artificial tree to roses, even in some small way.' (Never mind that he hadn't bought the roses.)

I'll admit he momentarily had me with that comparison but I can think quickly, if not logically. "The roses would have died, but the artificial tree will last forever."

He countered. "But to replace an item, forever lasting or not, with an item I wasn't going to buy you in the first place still makes no sense."

"It does to me," I answered. I saw the look of defeat in his eyes, but it was fleeting.

He took his logic in a new direction. "Why," he said, "do we need to fill the empty space in the bathroom?"

"Well, the vanity you installed isn't wide enough, and the empty space next to it just begs for greenery."

"It isn't wide enough," he said, "because we bought the vanity you insisted on."

"If you recall," I replied, "the vanity that filled the space would have cost a lot more, so an artificial tree is truly a bargain."

"An empty space is a better bargain," he said.

"Come on," I said, urging him to look inside the bathroom. "What do you see in that corner?"

"Nothing," he answered. "What's wrong with 'nothing'?"

"Nothing is wrong with 'nothing,' but here we need something, and that something is an artificial tree that will actually save us hundreds of dollars."

"Whoa," he said. "Roses don't cost hundreds of dollars."

"I know," I conceded, "but a bigger vanity will."

He cleared his throat and spoke in an attorney-like voice: "Not only did I not buy you roses, but I have no intention of installing a bigger vanity nor of buying an artificial tree." He rested his case.

I did not rest mine. I explained how buying an artificial tree would stimulate the economy. I mentioned that its artificialness would help save the rain forests. I ended by promising to string it with lights next Christmas - which would cost far less than purchasing Santa-decorated hand-towels and reindeer-shaped soap.

He let out a sigh, no doubt heard by all men of the world, and left the area muttering, "What is wrong with that woman?"

I can't explain the precise moment male logic caved because my tactics pretty much made no sense, even to me. Nevertheless, an artificial tree now stands in what was formerly a vacant spot. And I love the roses I received for my birthday.

Lawmakers fight for cash

Seek money for infrastructure in Lake County

By KATHY GRESEY
kgresey@nwnewsgroup.com

Local and state officials are demanding passage of a capital spending proposal that includes $186 million for infrastructure in northern Lake County.

The proposal seeks to relieve traffic issues in Lake County and elsewhere in the state by allotting money for road-resurfacing projects, bridge repair and other transportation-related work. School improvements also are outlined in the plan.

It has been nearly a decade since such capital needs were addressed, said state Sen. Michael Bond, D-Grayslake, who met with area officials Monday to discuss local traffic concerns.

Bond represents District 31, which includes municipalities from Fox Lake to Waukegan.

"Getting traffic flowing through northern Lake County will be an extraordinary improvement in quality of life, just getting from one side of town to the other," Bond said. "Now that the economy is slowing, there is really a need to invest in infrastructure because it leads to jobs."

State officials estimate that the proposed plan to improve infrastructure in Illinois could provide employment for 700,000 people.

Approving the proposal is critical to receiving matching federal funds for state projects. About $4 billion is at risk, said Illinois Department of Transportation Secretary Milton Sees, who spoke during the discussion.

"Could we lose federal money? Oh, yeah," he said. "There is even

The potholes are horrible."

What's in the capital spending proposal?

- More than $68 million to improve Route 45, which includes adding lanes
- More than $24 million to improve Route 83, which includes adding lanes and improving the intersections at Route 132 and Route 120
- More than $10 million to improve Route 173
- About $6 million to improve Sheridan Road

a concern we could lose current dollars."

Alleviating traffic congestion in Lake County long has been a desire of local officials.

Antioch Village President Dorothy Larson said big fixes in her area, such as improving Routes 83 and 173, have yet to come to fruition. Those roads are due for work under the spending plan.

"We're making developers widen Route 173, which is not their job," Larson said. "We're getting it bid by bid by bid. But that's not a solution."

Pothole repair was another topic raised during the transportation discussion.

Contracts to fix potholes in eastern and western Lake County will go out to bid May 16. Repairs will take four to six weeks to complete, said Diane O'Keefe, deputy director of highway for IDOT.

"Hopefully, by the end of May, you will see work in Lake County starting," she said. "In the interim, our maintenance staff is keeping up on patching those potholes."

Lupus walk to take place in Vernon Hills

By KATHY GRESEY
kgresey@nwnewsgroup.com

VERNON HILLS - Jeff Steybe, of Vernon Hills, envisions a better life for those living with Lupus.

His wife, Karen, died in September 2007 of Lupus-related complications that had affected her body for 20 years. The disease, which has no cure, can change a family, Steybe said.

"It's a mysterious disease," he said. "It's usually not a killer disease. It's a disease you learn to live with."

About 1.5 million people in the United States have Lupus, which is a disease that occurs when the immune system is unbalanced, causing it to become destructive to any major organ or tissue in the body, according to the Lupus Foundation of America.

In an effort to combat the disease, the Lupus Foundation of America is hosting an awareness walk Saturday, May 10, at Half Day

Want to go?

- The Walk for Now Lupus event will take place Saturday, May 10, at Half Day Forest Preserve. Registration is at 9 a.m. The walk begins at 10 a.m. The entrance to the forest preserve is on Route 21, south of Route 60 at Corporate Woods Parkway.

Forest Preserve, near Vernon Hills.

Steybe plans to participate in the event, which is titled Walk for Lupus Now.

"I'm happy to support it," he said. "When you live with the disease, you can see how it affects a person or a family. You realize the importance of getting information out to the public."

The Walk for Lupus Now event at Half Day Forest Preserve is the first in Lake County.

Victoria Ross, a co-chairman, helped bring the walk to the northern suburbs. She has had Lupus for more than four years.

"I think the event will be a success," she said. "I have had so many people with Lupus contact me for information. No matter how moderate this might be in terms of money, we have increased awareness."

The Lupus walk will include family-friendly events, including walk routes up to 3 miles, music, food and children's games. No registration fee is required, but participants are encouraged to set fundraising goals.

Mary Dollear, a vice president at the Illinois chapter, encouraged people to participate in the inaugural walk. Proceeds from the event will benefit the Illinois chapter.

"The research that has been done in the last few years has been encouraging," Dollear said. "But there is still a long way to go."

We like to believe that, as a democracy and world power, we are the most civilized country in the world.

Obviously, civility doesn't come with civilization because America imprisons more people than any country in the world. And we lead by far any country in the availability of deadly weapons.

Students 'Fear No Art' at college show

By JOSEPH MULLER
grayslake@weeklyjournals.com

GRAYSLAKE - All types of art, no matter how outrageous or groundbreaking, will be featured during CLC's 10th annual "Fear No Art" art show on May 2-4. Audiences will see all types of art - ranging from jazz blues to rock, contemporary dance to hip-hop, poetry to monologues, and photos to sculptures - during the show's three nights.

CLC dance teacher and "Fear No Art" artistic director Valerie Alpert said CLC students love the show.

"The show is popular because the audience gets to see a variety of art," Alpert said. "Almost every year we sell out for our three performances."

Alpert said student participation in the art show has doubled the show's size over the years, with nearly 60 participants of the current show compared to the 25 participants of the first show.

"We have a lot of new people this year," Alpert said.

Alpert said show's acts have also changed over time alongside advancements in technology.

"Even some of the dance shows are using technology in their routines," Alpert said.

CLC board considers armed safety officers

Incidents of violence at other schools spurs officials to re-examine policy

LAKE COUNTY JOURNALS

GRAYSLAKE - College of Lake County officials are considering a proposal that would authorize converting the college's Campus Safety Office to a full police department.

The proposal also will grant officers the authority to carry firearms.

Though the department's 14 sworn officers complete firearms training each year, they currently are authorized to carry only batons and pepper spray.

In the event of a situation requiring greater force, they would need to seek assistance from neighboring municipal police departments, officials said.

"Our concern is ensuring that officers are fully protected so that they can come to the aid of students, should a violent situation arise," Director of Campus Safety Kevin Lowry said in a release. "This is particularly important in the current climate where we have experienced both Virginia Tech and NIU."

The proposal would involve additional insurance costs of $200 an officer each year.

All public safety officers would have to pass a psychological screening test and complete additional regular firearms training, officials said.

College of Lake County trustees will consider the policy during a meeting May 27.

If approved, the name of the department would be changed to the College of Lake County Police Department.

The full proposal would go into effect in October 2008.

Health fair targets childhood obesity, nutrition

LAKE COUNTY JOURNALS

WINNETKA - The Junior League of Evanston-North Shore will host its third initiative on childhood obesity and nutrition.

The event, Junior Leagues' Kids in the Kitchen, is the work of more than 200 leagues worldwide.

The goal is to raise awareness and reverse the growth of childhood obesity and its associated health issues.

The Junior League of Evanston-North Shore will host the event with Big Brothers Big Sisters of Lake County. The event is entitled the "High Five Health Fair" and will be Saturday, May 17, at Oak Terrace Elementary School in Highwood. This fair will be for 200 preregistered members of Big Brothers Big Sisters of Lake County.

The High Five Health Fair will include hands-on booths which feature the topics of nutrition, fitness, healthy recipes, health education and making smart choices. There will be demonstrations, educational material, as well as games. The children, ages 7-11, can track their participation. They will make their way through the booths with their mentors and, once they have visited all five booths, will receive a goody bag.

The health fair will welcome members of the Indy Air Bears, a nationally ranked jump-rope team that specializes in getting spectators to see jump rope as a fun way to incorporate fitness into their daily lives. The Indy Air Bears will perform and clinics throughout the day.

Chamber music to fill College of Lake County

By DANI SCHWEIGERT
dschweigert@nwnewsgroup.com

GRAYSLAKE – College of Lake County is getting ready to present a style of music that hasn't been performed at the college.

Starting at 7 p.m. May 9, CLC's Music Department will perform its first chamber music concert.

"It's more intimate," said Dr.

Michael Flack, chairman of the music department and director of the college's top groups. "Each player has to be a good player. There's really nowhere to hide."

Flack organized three new performing groups that play chamber music. The groups are composed of music students and adults from the community, who form two woodwind quintets and a flute quartet. Flack said this is the first semester CLC has offered chamber music.

"The audience will hear some diversity," Flack said. "The music features different composers from different style periods."

He added that he hoped the concert will attract new audiences.

Flack, of Antioch, has been with CLC for four years.

One musician who shares Flack's love of music is Michelle Horowitz. Horowitz, of Grayslake, has performed with CLC's wind ensemble for more than a year and will play the flute and bassoon during the concert May 9.

"We were all pretty excited," she said. "It gives us another chance to play and reach out to the community. It's a unique style of music that brings out our individual talents."

Time has come to rethink shoe

I'm not a big fan of shoes. Never have been. Never will be. I prefer my feet to be bare. Or, at the very least, in sandals.

Not sure why.

Perhaps I don't like the feeling of leather slowly closing in on the top of my feet. When they're forced into shoes each morning, I imagine my feet feeling much the way bread does when it's thrown in the toaster. Luckily, the inside of my shoes don't emit heat. Be thankful for the small blessings.

Or maybe it's the fact I can't move my toes. Now, while it's true that I don't need to move my toes, I want to, especially when they're in shoes. At least with sandals, my toes are free to wiggle around to their toey delight. But with shoes, their style is cramped.

And then again, I could just be a bit crazy.

In any case, feet are meant to be free. It's just the way it is.

I work, though, and this means I must wear shoes five days a week for at least eight hours if not more.

When I first started working as a sportswriter in La Salle, still used to wearing sandals every day to class at college, I used to slip my feet out of my shoes at work and hide them under my desk.

It felt like I was doing something horribly wrong. I was terrified that one day I would be discovered and fired for improper placement of socks on work carpet.

So, I sucked it up and got used to wearing shoes all day.

But, it doesn't have to be this way.

The good people at NPR (narcissistic people who read) recently did a bit with Adam Sternbergh of New York magazine, who wrote an article about the fallacy of footwear.

In his article, he writes that humans aren't meant to wear shoes because they force us to walk wrong and inhibit our overall foot health. And while it's important to wear something on the bottom of your feet to prevent you from stepping on glass or other sharp objects like Hillary Clinton's nose, for the most part we should be walking around sans shoes.

I agree wholeheartedly, as does history.

Cavemen didn't wear shoes, the Egyptians wore sandals and I think the real point of both "The Hobbit" and "The Lord of the Rings" was that you don't need to wear shoes to save the world. Bilbo and Frodo Baggins, those bare-footed hobbits, were just pointing us in the right direction. If Frodo could defeat the evil eye thing in "Lord of the Rings" without shoes, surely we could finish up that important memo the same way.

Let's rethink shoes. Along with a smoke-free work environment, we could have a shoe-free work environment and promote both foot and lung health.

But you still can't wear T-shirts. C'mon, you're at work. Let's not be too crazy.

Turning food into fuel

Ethanol policies of the United States, the European Union, and other nations is not solely to blame for the increases in the price of food. But the policies are not helping the situation, and as time goes on, ethanol production will increasingly become an issue. In 2007, the Department of Agriculture estimated that we would use about 27 percent of our corn crop for ethanol. This figure is supposed to rise in coming years.

Is this wise, given that we already have food shortages and price spikes around the world? It would seem that the U.S. should be doing what it can to maximize food production, not simply to help keep prices down here, but to assist in leveling the price of food globally.

If the U.S. wants to pursue biofuels, it must do so in a way that avoids unintended consequences, and we must consider sources of ethanol - such as industrial hemp - that are not staple food crops.

Way too much growth

To the Editor:

I always enjoy John's columns. When it comes to rapid uncontrolled growth, Antioch, my town, is the poster child - particularly in the last 10 years when we went from a semi-sleepy quiet town to mega-metropolis and for what? For tax dollars? They are complaining that they do not have enough.

It is NEVER enough. The facts are that it has gone downhill since the uncontrolled rampant growth. Ask anyone who has not been to Antioch in a while and they will tell you. We don't even have a hardware store in this town anymore. Menards is a big box. They sell only main stream. The local politicians always have an answer, just no solutions.

They are supposed to be paid to protect the citizens, but instead protect anyone that wants to give them cash for any reason.

It is always good for them to get the cash now and worry about the issues later. The owner of the Ace Hardware store most likely received an offer he couldn't refuse, and probably not unlike all the offers to farmers in Lake County. These farms, of course, are now mega-subdivisions. All in the name of progress? Or is it greed? They ruin everything then beg for money "for the kids" later.

After living here for almost 25 years, I have seen it all, I thought. It gets worse every year. The informed told us that building the "big boxes" would displace the town and it has. The local politicians did not agree. I beg to differ.

The strip mall in the center of town has many vacancies since everyone wants to go by Wal-Mart. Money set aside for "downtown" businesses from tax revenues generated by the big boxes to "protect" the said businesses might be reduced because some now say it is stupid to bankroll these business.

This insatiable thirst for the big box will do us all in. Competition is good, but that is not what you get with a big box. You get "domination" then higher prices and less services later. At the Antioch Wal-Mart, they had plenty of people at the registers when they opened. Now they have less and less. They expect you to scan all your own stuff and the lines are pitiful. I buy the absolute minimum at the big boxes. Customers are not supposed to be frustrated while shopping. But the big box says "take it and like it" because if you leave there are a hundred more where you came from.

Gas prices steal rebate

To the Editor:

You know how everyone says the economy is in trouble?

The government is going to "stimulate" the economy by giving us a rebate check this spring. The $300 to $600 is supposed to fix the economy by having us buy luxury items we can't usually afford.

How is that going to help us? I, for one, will be using my check to put gas in my vehicle, not spending it on extras and boosting the economy! Gas prices are up. Utilities and food prices are up. People are losing their homes! How do they expect us to stimulate the economy by buying? That just puts more money in the corporate pockets, and while they drive around in their limos, we, the little people, can't afford to put gas in our cars to go to work.

Crime might not pay, but sure does cost

A recent report of the Pew Center on the State's Public Safety Performance Project gave insight into the magnitude of crime in America. It reported that for the first time in history more than one in every 100 adults are in jail or prison. That in itself is staggering and scary.

We like to believe that, as a democracy and world power, we are the most civilized country in the world.

Obviously, civility doesn't come with civilization because America imprisons more people than any country in the world. After us comes China, who with a much greater population, has about 1.5 million behind bars. We lead by far any country in the availability of deadly weapons.

What the Pew Report also concluded is that we might not be getting back in public safety the return that we might expect from such a high prison rate. There is some dispute over that because a FBI statistic claims that the rate of violent crimes fell by 25 percent in the last 25 years.

My guess is that there must be some middle ground on the issue. It isn't as much the violent crime offenders who are bulging the prison population; it is the ever-increasing non-violent offenders.

John S. Matijevich

olent offenders.

It would be counter-productive to release a significant number of prisoners who have committed violent offenses. But, we must be looking at ways to divert non-violent offenders from prisons to alternative punishments. It's so much less costly and it's working in jurisdictions that are making such changes.

For example, some non-violent offenders who are released from prison on probation are returned back for violating the terms of their probation.

That is appropriate; however, it is often the case that the probation violations are for minor, technical violations. In those cases, it might be more prudent to use other punishments rather than incarceration.

After all, it generally costs about $25,000 to house and maintain one prisoner for a year. The alternative can work and, at the same time, save huge amounts of tax dollars.

The "tough on crime" theme began in the late 70s and gathered steam in the 80s and 90s. Voters turned against candidates they thought to be "soft on crime." The public's attitude was that the "lock 'em up and throw away the key" attitude was the answer to the crime problem. It's not that easy.

I recall when the legislature had to back up the rising influx of criminals sent to prisons with megabucks in taxpayer dollars.

It is hard to believe that during former Gov. Jim Thompson's tenure, we built one prison for each of the 14 years he served. That's big bucks, just for bricks and mortar. That's just the tip of the iceberg; costs to house prisoners are sky-high and unending.

Also, I recall that on the same day when an Appropriations Committee was debating how to fund the Higher Education budget, it also was considering how to meet increases in the Department of Corrections, with its responsibility over prisons.

At one time during the hearings, I said that it's almost inconceivable that while many families were finding it difficult to meet tuition and housing needs of their children to attend universities, we were spending much more in taxpayer dollars to house criminals.

The point has always been said that "crime does not pay," and we all know that. But we can amend that saying to "crime does not pay," but "crime also costs, and costs, and costs ... to the taxpayers."

In the 80s and 90s, when states were flush with funds, the financing of the country's prison systems didn't seem to register as a major problem.

Now, most of the states are into deficit financing and it is becoming hard to fund critical needs.

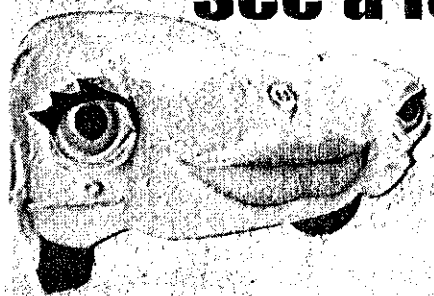

That is why the states are looking at alternatives to prison for many of the non-violent offenders. Drug treatment centers and other community based programs are so much less costly and have had a measure of success.

Let's hope that the Pew Report will cause states to take steps that might reduce the cost that crime brings and, at the same time initiate programs that will reduce crime rates. That would be a winner at both ends.

Too many questions

My week has seemed extra long. Why, you ask? Well, mostly because my children have been asking that very question, "Why?" (along with a few hundred other questions), over and over again!

Even for a seasoned multitasker such as myself, it's been a challenge to keep up. What are we doing this weekend? What is in these burgers? What do rats eat for breakfast?

I was reminded of when my oldest son was just 6 months old. A co-worker mentioned that her 2-year-old son talked so much on their long drive home, she occasionally stemmed his endless questions by giving him a package of fruit snacks.

As I smiled and nodded, I was secretly horrified. I could hardly wait for my precious firstborn, Antonio, to say "mama" or "dada," and I knew without a doubt that I would never tire of the sound of his voice!

Fast-forward eight years and three more kids, the last one a girl.

Now, I am no expert on gender differences, but I will say, it would take more than a measly package of fruit snacks to quell Angelina's running commentary.

It's probably why so many of her friends are imaginary - she doesn't want to risk anyone getting a word in edgewise.

For 3-year-old Angelina and others her age, experts say asking questions and receiving answers increases their vocabulary and their understanding of the world around them.

For older kids, asking questions is a way of making sense of the world.

I guess this explains why my 8-year-olds are always hanging around, eavesdropping on adult conversations. It is good to know that the constant questions are completely normal, even if the need to constantly answer them is exhausting.

So, although I vowed never to tire of my children's voices, I'll admit to occasionally locking myself in the bathroom, with the shower running, just for a chance to collect my thoughts.

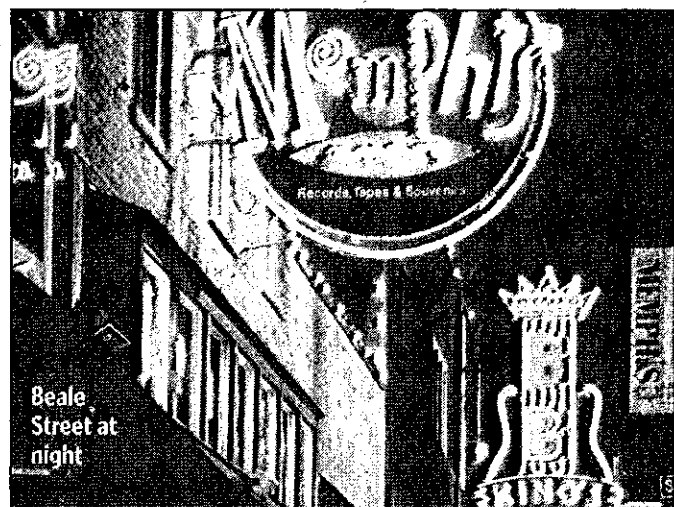

And periodically, the best part of vacuuming is not the clean carpet, but being able to see my kids' lips moving and not hear a thing.

Statue of Elvis Presley on Beale Street
Photos provided

Memphis means blues. Memphis means soul. Memphis means rock 'n' roll. For music fans, there's no better vacation destination than Tennessee's largest city, home to B.B. King, Isaac Hayes and Elvis Presley, as well as Beale Street, Stax Records and Sun Studio.

It sounds silly, but this Mississippi River metropolis seems to thrive on a groove. Everywhere you go, the sights and sounds of great music follow. This is a city that embraces its musical heritage, exemplified by Sun Studio, which stands more or less the same today as it did when Presley, Johnny Cash and Carl Perkins made music history.

Although the studio has gained a few giant pictures of the legends Sun Records spawned, it retains the original microphone used for recording many a rock classic (making for some great photo-ops). A Sun tour guide, such as the perfectly named "Slim" Wallace, leads visitors through the white-paneled studio and an upstairs room of memorabilia. The guide also plays audio selections from the studio's recording history - including the first rock 'n' roll song, "Rocket 88," written by Ike Turner and recorded by Jackie Brenston.

Elvis is the reason many visit Sun. He's the only reason people visit Graceland, the King's Memphis mansion on the city's south side. Although the Graceland tour is way overpriced and largely impersonal (the site provides headphones for the audio tour), it is informative, enjoyable and well-paced. Plus, it's pretty wild to see Presley's tacky taste in decor - the "jungle room" is astounding.

Memphis' most stellar music history attraction is the Stax Museum of American Soul Music. No headphones here: Sweet soul tunes from Carla Thomas, Sam & Dave and Johnnie Taylor blast throughout this vibrant museum, which traces R&B music from southern churches in the early 20th century to the pop charts in the 1960s.

Because it's a Memphis museum located on the former site of Stax Records, the focus is appropriately on Stax artists like Redding, Hayes and Booker T. and the MGs, but its scope includes other labels and artists, including Motown and Al Green. It's a thoroughly artful, entertaining and enlightening experience.

Memphis is home to great food as well. And if you're talking great Memphis food, you're talking barbecue.

The pork barbecue capital of the world seems to offer a million different dishes of the tender, smoky variety. If you want to stick to pork ribs, the city's best barbecue joints offer plenty that will, ahem, stick to your ribs. The only question is if you want them "wet" (doused in succulent sauce) or "dry" (without sauce, but covered in a blend of spices called a "rub"). If you've never had the latter, you must sample The Rendezvous' version of this Memphis staple - a tender, juicy and flavorful experience that can't be duplicated. With notable patrons such as The Rolling Stones and hometown boy Justin Timberlake, the downtown destination can't be called "out of the way," but you will have to enter through a smoke-permeated alleyway. If you get lost in Memphis' maze of one-way streets, you can always follow your nose to Rendezvous, 52 S. Second St.

Local delicacies don't end at barbecue. As a great southern city, Memphis offers some killer fried chicken (check out the spicy offerings at Gus' Fried Chicken in the South Main Historic District) and plenty of marvelous soul food, especially in the establishments that dot the city's south side (including Fourway Restaurant and Ellen's). Wash everything down with a glass or two of sweet tea; most restaurants brew their own. With so much great, greasy fare, it's no wonder Forbes magazine recently named Memphis America's fattest city.

Alden Resale sells more than suits of armor

This is the first installment of Day Tripping, a monthly series that will look at places of interest outside of Lake County.

I first noticed Alden Resale in northern McHenry County when I spotted a suit of armor in the store window as my husband and I were passing by.

For some odd reason, I have always wanted to have a suit of armor. But every time we passed the shop, it wasn't open yet. Or we would be driving by at night and it was already closed. We vowed that some day we would step foot into this wonderful looking shop.

Then that day finally came.

We were overwhelmed at the goodies inside the walls of Alden Resale. I thought my eyes were deceiving me or that I had died and gone to heaven. Antique furniture lined the walls - dining room sets, tables, hutches, lamps, bed frames, you name it. At the sight of all this wonderful furniture, I began designing my future dream home in my head.

There isn't just antique furniture. The store has used books, video tapes, CDs and DVDs, new furniture, bedroom sets, brand new mattresses and bicycles. And there isn't just one building. There are three buildings that proudly display the name Alden Resale.

Alden Resale was started by Gary and Carol Shulz in 1995 and resides in northern McHenry County. It's on the corner of Alden Road and Route 173, and you can reserve items by sending an e-mail through the store Web site, which is www.aldenresale.net. And, hold on tight.

Savory risotto a dinner in itself

By JEAN KRESSY
jkressy@nwnewsgroup.com

We know that making a pot of risotto requires practically all of your attention. In addition to keeping the broth at a bare simmer, the rice needs almost nonstop stirring. It's not the kind of a dish you can cook in a hurry, but we have never been put off by whatever it takes to make it.

In fact, we are so mesmerized by the transformation that takes place in the pot, we never even think about handing the spoon over to a second in command.

At the beginning, all there is to see are firm grains of rice simmering in broth. But as the cooking continues and more broth is added, the rice swells and the mixture develops the creaminess that defines risotto.

Although where the creation of risotto occurred is something of a mystery, historians generally agree that it goes back to the 11th century and was probably first made in Sicily with rice from the Far East.

In Italy, risotto, like pasta, is eaten as the first course as part of a meal that has several courses, but we have no trouble sitting down to a big plate of risotto and calling it supper. It's that good.

Risotto with Parmigiano, Prosciutto and Asparagus

- 5 cups low-sodium chicken broth
- 1 tablespoon olive oil
- 2 tablespoons unsalted butter, divided

- 1/4 cup minced yellow onion
- 1 garlic clove, minced
- 1 1/4 cups short-grained risotto rice (such as Arborio)
- 1 pound asparagus, tough ends removed and cut in 1-inch pieces
- 1/2 cup freshly grated Parmigiano-Reggiano
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 4 very thin slices Prosciutto di Parma, julienned

1. Simmer broth over medium heat.
2. Combine oil and 1 tablespoon butter in a heavy saucepan and heat over medium heat. Add onion; sauté 5 minutes. Add garlic; sauté 30 seconds.
3. Add rice; cook 5 minutes, stirring to coat well. Add 1 cup broth; cook, stirring constantly, until absorbed. Continue adding broth by small ladefuls, stirring constantly and allowing each addition to be absorbed before adding more, until the rice is tender but still firm to the bite and creamy, about 20 minutes in all. Add asparagus during last 5 minutes of cooking.
4. Remove from heat and stir in the Parmigiano, remaining butter and salt.
5. Divide risotto among 4 pasta bowls, top each serving with Prosciutto, and let it "wilt" over hot rice. Serve immediately. Serves 4.

'Baby Mama' a bummer
Comedy starring Amy Poehler a 'disappointment'By JAKE BILINSKI
jbilinski@nwnewsgroup.com

I have to be honest - I had missed the ad campaigns for "Baby Mama," so when I first heard the movie's title, I thought, "dear Lord, no ... not a sequel to 'My Baby's Daddy'."

Thankfully, a cinematic apocalypse of that nature isn't quite yet upon us (though there are studio offerings aplenty to suggest it best to abandon all faith in America's taste in regards to film fare). That being said, "Baby Mama," while not a total failure, is by no means cause to light celebratory stogies.

Kate (Tina Fey) is a successful, single businesswoman who has spent her life building up her career instead of a family. Inevitably, she catches the baby bug and tries her options. Considering her T-shaped uterus and the five-year-plus waiting period for a single woman to adopt, she turns to a surrogate for help.

Enter Angie (Amy Poehler) - a whiny, podunk chick with zero street smarts and a healthy uterus for hire. It's

"Baby Mama"

Rated: PG-13 for crude and sexual humor, language and a drug reference
Running time: 1 hour, 36 minutes
Director: Michael McCullers
Starring: Tina Fey, Amy Poehler, Greg Kinnear, Sigourney Weaver

a match made in dysfunctional heaven. Angie soon thereafter leaves her boyfriend and shows up on Kate's doorstep needing a place to crash, and what follows is your predictably formulated cycle of quirkily awkward scenarios, topped off with coming-of-age understanding.

At first, I expected this to be a drawn-out Saturday Night Live skit, as Lorne Michaels serves as producer. But the awkward thing is that the film harbors more heart than it does laughs.

This works to a varying degree. The moments of sincerity are quickly topped off with cheap sophomoric gags, which are equal parts funny and tedious.

The script is average and predictable, penned by Michael McCullers (who co-wrote the Austin Powers sequels). McCullers also makes his directorial debut here, offering nothing particularly worth mentioning.

The highlights of the flick are its characters. Though none are original, or particularly developed, there are bits of comedic charisma that is quite refreshing.

Romany Malco (who slayed me in The "40 Year Old Virgin") is a hoot as Kate's wisecracking doorman, and brings charm to a wholeheartedly stereotypical character. Steve Martin is great as Kate's Zen-hippie boss who often pontificates about his time toasting guava nuts with a witch doctor after running naked through the sands of wherever.

The real disappointment of the flick is that it's just OK.

The setup promises for something far more whimsical. I expected something far greater.

'No Country' offers laughs

Second City production addresses elections, bullies

By TOM WITOM
thomaswitom@yahoo.com

The country is in transition politically and reeling with economic uncertainty. Signs of change in technology and culture are everywhere.

All this adds up to perfect fodder for satire, the stuff Second City has thrived on for nearly 50 years.

The company's lively 95th revue, "No Country for Old White Men," has fun with a send-up of the upcoming election. The theme is woven throughout the show, with each of the six members in the cast asking: "I have a question ..."

Topics range from healthcare (coverage always seems to exclude injury or illness), equal pay for men and women, the down real estate market, cyber bullies and the tight job market.

Tickets, please

What: "No Country for Old White Men"
Where: Second City, 1616 N. Wells St., Chicago
When: Open run
Tickets: $19-$25
Show information: 312-337-3992

One likable sketch tackles work ethic. A lone office employee is determined to focus on her job while she is mercilessly distracted by coworkers who are asking her to respond to frivolous email, view YouTube clips and become someone's MySpace friend.

Other sketch that hits home by poking fun at how a quick-change oil shop targets certain customers with nonsensical, high-priced extras.

The Cubs, lovable losers, come in for their licks as do the $600 stimulus checks the government will issue. And there's a clever bit in which a son delivers some startling news (political in nature) to his gay mother.

Another plus is how well the cast - Shelly Gossman, Ithamar Enriquez, Ambert Ruffin, Brad Morris, Emily Wilson and Joe Canale - handles two off-the-cuff improvisational sequences, probably the most challenging.

"No Country" draws on familiar targets it has tackled before, and that's perfectly fine.

On the night we saw this revue, things went swimmingly during the first half, but after the intermission things went off track as the focus wandered.

The revue is directed by Jim Carlson with musical direction by Ruby Streak.

Resale store has layaway

• RESALE

Alden Resale actually provides their customers with a layaway plan! You almost never hear of layaway plans in this day and age.

But back to that suit of armor.

It wasn't a suit of armor as I had originally thought, but something even more unique and fun. Alden Resale has three different sizes of knights in shining armor, ranging in price from $79 for the 2-foot tall version, $89 for the 3-foot version and $279 for the 7-foot version.

Who doesn't need a knight in shining armor to spruce up their home?

And speaking about unique items, Alden Resale also has such things as a Civil War-era sword, a chair made out of horns, miscellaneous saddles, ham radio accessories, and a carved wooden bear.

The last time we were there, we actually came across an old barber's chair. Now that would be cool.

It's a unique and fun place to spend some time browsing!

MUSIC

LAKE COUNTY FOLK CLUB: Musicians Chris and Tom Kastle will perform maritime music at 7 p.m. Sunday, May 4, at El Barrio Restaurant and Lounge, 1122 Diamond Lake Road, Mundelein. The duo sing and play guitar, octave mandolin, concertina, tin whistles and percussion.

Cost to attend the concert is $10 for adults and $8 for students, seniors and members of the Lake County Folk Club.

For more information, call the club at 847-356-0623 or visit www.thelakecountyfolkclub.org.

ENVIRONMENT

THE LAKE COUNTY AUDUBON SOCIETY: Sarah Surroz, stewardship and environmental coordinator at the Liberty Prairie Conservancy, will discuss strategies for balancing growth in Lake County at 7:30 p.m. Monday, May 5, at Libertyville Village Hall, 118 W. Cook St., Libertyville. The event will be sponsored by the Lake County Audubon Society.

During the presentation, Surroz will discuss the importance of preserving natural area and farmland in Lake County. The economic benefits of protecting open space will be reviewed, and attendees will be introduced to the conservation easement, which is one of the nation's most popular tools for preserving open land. Community members are invited to attend the free program, which is expected to conclude about 9 p.m.

CULTURE

COLLEGE OF LAKE COUNTY: Food, fun, and dance are on tap at a Cinco de Mayo celebration that will take place Monday, May 5, at the College of Lake County Lakeshore Campus in Waukegan.

The event will take place from noon to 2 p.m. outdoors in the CLC Lakeshore Campus courtyard, located at the corner of Genesee Street and Madison Avenue.

Community members are invited to this free celebration, where they can also experience a "Taste of Lakeshore" and learn about the programs and services available at the Lakeshore Campus.

Cinco de Mayo commemorates the victory of the Mexicans over the French army at The Battle of Puebla in 1862.

During the CLC celebration, there will be food, live entertainment by DJ David Olivares and folkloric dancers.

For more information about the event, call the Lakeshore Campus Special Projects Hotline at 847-543-2194. The campus is located at 111 N. Genesee St. in downtown Waukegan.

BOOKS

SPECIAL EDUCATION DISTRICT OF LAKE COUNTY: To increase community awareness about autism, the Special Education District of Lake County (SEDOL) has developed a partnership with Barnes and Noble Bookstore in Vernon Hills.

On Monday, May 5, Barnes and Noble, 720 Hawthorne Center, Vernon Hills, is offering a Book Fair/Shop & Share Day. The day will include a book signing at 7 p.m. by Sharon Rosenbloom and Thomas Balsamo, who wrote "Souls: Beneath & Beyond Autism."

For hosting the fair, SEDOL will receive a percentage of store sales that day. To learn more, call Barnes & Noble at 847-247-1157.

'Terrific tales' come to life

New book a glimpse at growing up in Lake County

By KATHY GRESEY
kgresey@nwnewsgroup.com

Mom's horrible cooking. A memorable fishing trip. The neighborhood bully.

These topics and more are brought to life in the new book "32 Terrific Tales of Lake County, Illinois" by Lindenhurst author G.C. Rosenquist.

The collection of 32 short stories recalls - with humor - what it was like to grow up in Lake County during the 1970s.

Readers will be reminded of their own childhoods when they pore over the book, Rosenquist said.

"Everyone has a fishing story and a mom's bad cooking story," he said. "People are identifying with this book. It's really hitting a nerve."

The 147-page publication takes readers back in time to places such as the Grayslake Outdoor Movie Theater, the Lake County Fair and Lake Michigan.

Rosenquist spent more than 10 years writing the stories in the book and editing them for publication.

"It was one of the joys of my life to write this book," he said. "There was no pressure. I took my time."

A publishing party for "32 Terrific Tales of Lake County, Illinois" will take place from 1 to 4 p.m. Saturday, May 3, at This Old Book, 138 Center St., Grayslake.

Rosenquist will attend the event, and autographed copies of the book will be available for $12.95.

Community members are invited to the party. Refreshments will be served.

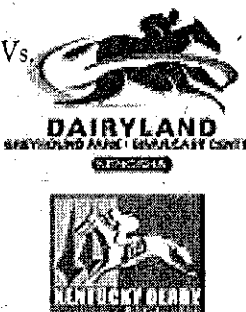

For more information about the event, call This Old Book at 847-548-6951.

Zubrzycki's Warsaw Inn: A Bountiful Polish/American Buffet

By LESLIE GLAZIER-WERNER

Don't expect to go unnoticed at Zubrzycki's Warsaw Inn. Everyone is treated like a much loved relative arriving for a family dinner. The owners and hard working wait staff dispense warm greetings and attentive service, while acknowledging the many regular customers by name.

The restaurant is owned and managed by Bernice Zubrzycki and her brother Joe Zubrzycki.

Joe said their parents, Angela and Eugene Zubrzycki, started the business 35 years ago at their first location in Calumet Park. Bernice said at one time there was a total of four locations. The McHenry restaurant was opened in 1982. Now only the McHenry Warsaw Inn remains as one of the oldest independent restaurants in the area.

"McHenry is our adopted home and we're active in the community," said Bernice. Both Bernice and Joe have been past presidents of the McHenry Restaurant Association. Joe is active in the local Rotary Club, and Bernice is involved in McHenry Area Chamber of Commerce activities.

The restaurant's dining area seats 150 and filled quickly while I was there during the lunch hour. Families, couples, business people, and seniors sat in surroundings reminiscent of an Old World courtyard. Brick, stucco, and grapevines added to the effect.

A buffet table dominates one side of the dining room and is laden with over 80 items for lunch, brunch, and dinner. "We make everything from scratch...and that sets us apart from other buffets," said Joe. Joe added that the bread is baked fresh every day, and that even the Polish sausage is made there.

The buffet lunch did not disappoint this writer. There were homemade soups, a healthy salad bar and fresh fruits, along with both American and Polish favorites like fried chicken, Black Angus beef and gravy, ocean perch, Polish sausage, sauerkraut, stuffed cabbage, pierogis, blintzes, and potato pancakes. A large dessert table graced the far corner. The Warsaw Inn also has daily dinner specials like roast duck on Saturday, or a fish fry on Friday. "We're always improving and changing items," said Joe.

Zubrzycki's
Warsaw Inn
POLISH-AMERICAN BUFFET

Zubrzycki's Warsaw Inn has a banquet room that seats up to 130, and does a brisk business catering events both at the restaurant and other locations. In fact, the Zubrzyckis have two catering services. Warsaw Inn catering provides the home-style fare served at the restaurant, while Classic Events & Catering can provide casual to elegant meals for everything from a business meeting to a wedding. Both catering businesses offer a complete range of services, like delivery and set up, tableside service and tear down. Classic Events & Catering also provides expert event planning, decorations, and location selection.

"We take a great amount of care that we provide the best product possible because we are putting our family name on it," said Joe. This philosophy has garnered the restaurant recognition as one of the best buffets in the Midwest by "Midwest Living" magazine, as well as the Silver Platter award by "Food Industry News". So be sure to enjoy the warm welcome at this bountiful Polish/American buffet.

>> Horoscope

ARIES - March 21/April 20
Aries, it's a miracle you've lasted in a dead-end relationship as long as you have.

TAURUS - April 21/May 21
Taurus, it's reasonable for you to be upset with someone who has done you wrong.

GEMINI - May 22/June 21
Sometimes surprises come in small packages, and that's just what will happen this week.

CANCER - June 22/July 22
Cancer, while you often want to be everyone's friend, you have to accept that some people will just not be drawn away by your actions.

LEO - July 23/Aug. 23
Romantic happenings dominate most of your week, Leo, which is OK.

VIRGO - Aug. 24/Sept. 22
Virgo, the things you believe you should be focusing on at this moment really aren't a priority.

LIBRA - Sept. 23/Oct. 23
Without a vision you'll just be ambling along.

SCORPIO - Oct. 24/Nov. 22
Scorpio, changes are in store at home and at the workplace. This much stimuli may be a negative or a positive for you depending upon the frame of mind you're in.

SAGITTARIUS - Nov. 23/Dec. 21
Hold on to that hard-earned money just a little bit longer, Sagittarius.

CAPRICORN - Dec. 22/Jan. 20
Capricorn, don't shop or buy above your head. Otherwise you'll be in a financial mess by June.

AQUARIUS - Jan. 21/Feb. 18

When looking for projects to put an end to your boredom, Aquarius, don't look beyond matters in your house and with your own family.

PISCES - Feb. 19/March 20

Pisces, when everyone else seems to be moving at a snail's pace, you're running circles around all of them. Keep busy, and you will get the rewards that you seek.

>> Out&About

ACTING

IMPROV PLAYHOUSE: Kidz in the Biz, a marketing seminar for parents and children interested in how to successfully break into the commercial, film, print and entertainment business will take place from 1 to 4 p.m. on May 17 at the Improv Playhouse Black Box Theatre, 735 N. Milwaukee Ave., Libertyville.

David Stuart, a professional actor, will be directing the seminar, which will include proven marketing plans that include auditioning strategies, internet marketing, talent and casting agency resources and headshot information.

Participants will receive resource materials to work through during the session.

Cost is $65 for the first one to two family members and $20 for each additional family member.

For more information or to register, call 847-968-4529 or go to improvplayhouse.com.

HIKING

COLLEGE OF LAKE COUNTY:

Adventurous students who enjoy camping, writing and learning in the great outdoors can earn seven hours of credit during a two-week Appalachian Trail field study course, being offered by the College of Lake County from May 18 to June 1. Members of the community are invited to participate in the course.

During the course, students will camp at the Mt. Rogers National Recreation Area, located in the mountainous western tip of Virginia.

Students will hike along the Appalachian Trail and return to a tent campsite each night.

Participants must attend two pre-trip meetings at noon on May 4 and 11 in Room C225 at the Grayslake campus, 19351 W.

Washington St. Two post-trip meetings also are required. The estimated cost for the trip is $950.

For more information, contact Bob Remedi at 847-543-2326 or at remedi@clcollinois.edu.

To submit an event for Out & About, e-mail Kathy Gresy at kgresy@nwnewsjournal.com. For more Out & About listings, go to LakeCountyJournals.com and select "Calendar" under Lakelife.
